

Blog of the Day: Travelrific

Posted by kheyboer February 18, 2008 05:30AM

There's something about the middle of February in New Jersey that makes you think about . . . being anywhere else but here.

Linda Tancs, based in Hillsboro, blogs about all things travel-related on her site, Travelrific. She posts updates on travel news and ideas for places to visit-- even if it's just from your computer.

Tancs, who describes herself as an avid traveler, also has a long list of free podcasts on her site. She narrates travel overviews of exotic destinations, including Greece, Turkey, Egypt and Indonesia.

Recent podcasts talk about the open air municipal laundramats near Mumbai, India, the Medina in Fez, Morocco and the stamp trade in Liechtenstein.

Her 6-minute podcast on the sandy beaches and tropical forests in Bali helps brighten even the grayest day here in Newark . . .

Categories: Blog of the Day

Comments

Footer